Internship Program Overview

Thank you for hosting a Trinity student as an intern for your organization. The personal and career-oriented lessons an intern will learn could not be accomplished without your involvement. We are confident that, given clear guidelines from you, Trinity students can bring energy, creativity, and enthusiasm to your organization.

Three elements guide Trinity’s internship program

Structured Plan
A detailed job description is crucial for setting up a high quality learning experience. Outline daily responsibilities and larger projects the intern will complete. Include the qualifications you would like to see in candidates and instructions on how to apply. Download this template for writing internship descriptions.

Substantive work
The student and host organization benefit most when the intern’s contributions impact the organization in a measurable way.

Mentorship
Provide regular feedback on work performance and talk with interns about career exploration, effective workplace habits, and developing skills.

Trinity also requires Compliance with Dept. of Labor Standards and local, state, and federal laws. See page 5 for more information.

Desired learning outcomes from all internship opportunities

Career Exploration
Increase awareness about career aspirations. Consider what kind of organizational environment and what types of roles could be the best fit.

Skill Development
Identify specific knowledge or skill areas that can be gain through an internship. This can be a blend of soft skills like time management or effective communication and hard skills like spreadsheet modelling or press release writing.

The internship program’s primary goal is to help students further develop motivation and self-confidence. For more information please see Trinity’s resource page for internship hosts.
Community Partner Processes for Recruitment

A. Write an Internship Description
Job descriptions are the currency we use to connect interns with you. Use them to help students envision what they will do, what they will learn, and qualifications needed to apply. Specific descriptions are essential for establishing a good fit between students and organizations. Each description should include:

- A description of your company in terms of mission, product or service, and clientele
- Summary of position
- Details about work:
  - Indicate training/mentoring the intern will receive
  - List typical ongoing tasks
  - Describe any special projects(s) assigned to the intern
- Qualifications:
  - List skills necessary to perform the work
  - Add desired experience
- Application Instructions
  - Indicate what should be included (cover letter, resume, writing sample, portfolio, etc.)

B. Post your Internship Description
We use the Handshake recruiting system to share all job and internship opportunities with Trinity students. Follow this link to create an account. It should take less than five minutes. If you're already recruiting on Handshake you'll be able to easily add Trinity University.

For more information on the Handshake platform please see the Handshake Help Center, or contact our office if you'd like help setting up your account. We look forward to connecting with you on Handshake!

If you have any questions navigating our system, please call 210.999.8321 for assistance.

C. Intern Selection
Set up interviews and make an offer to the student you select.

Although there are distinct advantages to paying interns, Trinity understands that sometimes this is not an option. For an unpaid internship to be approved by the University, it must follow federal guidelines set by the Fair Labor Standards Act.
Complying with the Department of Labor’s Fair Labor Standards Act

We encourage employers to comply with the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA) by offering a competitive wage for internship positions. We recommend you read the Department of Labor’s internship fact sheet reprinted below and consult with your HR and/or legal department to ensure that your position complies with the FLSA.

Fact Sheet #71: Internship Programs Under The Fair Labor Standards Act

This fact sheet provides general information to help determine whether interns and students working for “for-profit” employers are entitled to minimum wages and overtime pay under the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA).¹

Background

The FLSA requires “for-profit” employers to pay employees for their work. Interns and students, however, may not be “employees” under the FLSA—in which case the FLSA does not require compensation for their work.

The Test for Unpaid Interns and Students

Courts have used the “primary beneficiary test” to determine whether an intern or student is, in fact, an employee under the FLSA.² In short, this test allows courts to examine the “economic reality” of the intern-employer relationship to determine which party is the “primary beneficiary” of the relationship. Courts have identified the following seven factors as part of the test:

1. The extent to which the intern and the employer clearly understand that there is no expectation of compensation. Any promise of compensation, express or implied, suggests that the intern is an employee—and vice versa.

2. The extent to which the internship provides training that would be similar to that which would be given in an educational environment, including the clinical and other hands-on training provided by educational institutions.

3. The extent to which the internship is tied to the intern’s formal education program by integrated coursework or the receipt of academic credit.

4. The extent to which the internship accommodates the intern’s academic commitments by corresponding to the academic calendar.

5. The extent to which the internship’s duration is limited to the period in which the internship provides the intern with beneficial learning.

6. The extent to which the intern’s work complements, rather than displaces, the work of paid employees while providing significant educational benefits to the intern.

7. The extent to which the intern and the employer understand that the internship is conducted without entitlement to a paid job at the conclusion of the internship.
Academic Credit Option

Trinity enables students to earn up to six academic credit hours for approved internships completed while enrolled in an academic internship course. Approval depends upon whether the internship can provide the student with substantive & structured work and mentorship throughout the internship experience. The choice to pursue credit is up to the student. Trinity recommends paying student interns regardless of whether credit is attached.

- Enrollment in the internship course must be approved before the internship begins
- In order for the internship to be approved the employer must agree to:
  - Provide an official job description for the internship
  - Abide by Trinity’s legal terms for paid or unpaid internships, see Appendix A and B
  - Work with the student to set specific learning goals for the internship, see Appendix B
  - Complete performance evaluations at the mid and final points in the semester. Ideally, employer and intern will have a conversation about each performance review
  - Verify the number of hours completed for the internship. Each credit hour requires forty hours of internship-related work. For a three credit class the student will be expected to complete 120 hours of work, which breaks down to about 10-12 hours of work per week during the fall and spring semesters

- To complete the internship course the student must:
  - Work with his/her site supervisor to set 4-5 specific learning objectives. These can be a mix of hard skills and soft skills the student wants to improve
  - The student writes bi-weekly reflections on what he or she is learning at the internship as well as a final reflection at the end of the course
  - The student and supervisor complete performance evaluations sent by Trinity at the midterm and final points of the internship. Ideally, they have a conversation about each performance review

Example Postings for Communication Internships:

Communications Internship Example 1 –

The Summer Internship Program provides interns an opportunity to learn more about how our efficient, safe and “green” rail network supports the global supply chain. Interns participate in group events and projects, experiencing first-hand what it is like to be a full-time employee. We have countless opportunities for interns to develop their skills, create new ideas and even travel!

The program begins with an extensive corporate orientation. During the training period, interns receive a company overview and interact with company leaders. Following orientation, interns receive on-the-job training according to their assigned group. The objective of our Summer Internship Program is to find students that will join us after graduation as part of our Management Trainee Program. Relocation assistance may be provided to interns who are moving more than 50 driving miles from their permanent residence.

Responsibilities:
- Write company news and feature articles for posting on internal website and other communication channels, as assigned.
- Assist with special events, recognition programs, and other functions.
- Support content development for company-wide employee mobile app and for various social media outlets.
- Help monitor website statistics and social media usage, using various analytical and measurement tools.
- Assist in graphic design for a variety of digital and print publications.
- Assist with research and fact checking for company communications.
- Perform various administrative functions, including updating databases and mailing lists and other duties as assigned.

Qualifications and Preferred Skills
- Demonstrate the ability to perform the duties and responsibilities listed above

- Proven leadership experience and excellent oral and written communication skills
- Experience with PhotoShop, Excel and Publisher
Communications Internship Example 2 –

The aim of the program is to provide real-world communications experience to students while providing content for the company’s communications outlets. If you’re a mission-focused undergraduate or graduate college student seeking a meaningful internship experience, then we invite you to apply to our program. Students will receive a range of assignments, guidance on completing those assignments and feedback on their work. Work that meets the communication needs of the company will be published on one or more of the organization’s outlets.

Responsibilities
Students will be asked to brainstorm, create and write written or visual content for the company and our clients, including:

- Items for the company Intranet site and app
- Posts for the company blog
- News releases and requests for coverage
- Stories for the quarterly magazine, Heart to Heart Stories for the Heroes Among Us project
- On-site interviews with PBSC and blood donors, with content
- Content for social media sites
- Photo galleries for the Intranet site and app
- Research materials for infographics
- Information gathering for promotional materials
- Proofreading

Some of the content will be assigned by Corporate Communications staff. Students also will be asked to research and develop content on their own, especially for the blog, with guidance from staff. Students will focus on the production and editing of content, not the technical aspects of posting the content.

Qualifications and Preferred Skills

- Majoring in communication, journalism, English, or a comparable field
- 3.0 GPA or better
